

UshiCon 2003 Jpop Room

J-Pop (short for Japanese Popular music) is a generic term that describes many different genres of current musical styles such as pop, rock, dance, rap and soul. In Japan, the term J-Pop is used to distinguish this modern style of music from Enka, which is a traditionally styled Japanese ballad. You may hear terms such as J-Rock and J-Rap but these terms fall under the generic "Japanese Popular" umbrella and are only used to denote that they are not of a "Pop" style of music. Since there are such a wide variety of artists and styles, we have made every effort to present as many different styles and artists as possible.

Below are a few terms that we wanted to clarify so there won't be any confusion on our schedule play list.

PV: PVs (or Promotional Videos) are Japanese music videos (i.e. what you would see on MTV). We've selected the best PVs we could find and assembled them in both dedicated and mixed blocks. The dedicated blocks are the best PVs from some of the most popular artists in Japan. The Mix PV blocks are just that. Random music videos from a wide range of artists, styles, and genres. You'll get rap, rock, hip hop, idol, and more from these blocks. If you don't like a song, stick around, the next one'll be different.

Concerts: Not to be confused with the live blocks, the concert blocks are exactly what they sound like. It's a collection of live concert performances from various artists. As with the PV blocks, we're showing dedicated blocks featuring the very best footage from a particular artist. The mixed concert blocks feature some of the more popular performances from a wide range of acts. Concerts are often released on DVD and VHS and can be purchased. But occasionally they'll be shown on TV as a special program. These concert performances will range from smaller club like venues, to Tokyo Dome, one of the biggest stadiums in Japan.

Mix Live: In Japan, music variety TV shows are VERY popular. Often artists will appear on these shows, have a short interview, and then perform their newest released song. These blocks are compilations of such performances (minus the interviews). Similar to our mix PV blocks, there will be a wide variety in the artists and songs you will hear.

And now here is the play list for the UshiCon 2003 J-Pop room!

Friday

10:00am – Mix PVs 1:

1. Morning Musume – Ai no Tane
2. Tokio – Dr
3. Yellow Generation – Kitakaze to Taiyou
4. Every Little Thing – Someday Someplace
5. Pornograffiti – Apollo
6. Mika Nakashima – Crescent Moon
7. KinKi Kids – Boku no senaka ni wa hana ga aru

10:30am – Do As Infinity PVs: When they first came on the scene in 1999, they were expected to be another Every Little Thing clone. But with a little more emphasis on guitar than synth, and with Van Tomiko's more mature vocals, they soon put those rumors to rest as they asserted their own unique sound.

1. Tokumade
2. Week!
3. Fukai Mori
4. Boukenshatachi
5. Enrai
6. We Are

11:00am – Classic Mix PVs 1: Considering that most of us didn't get into JPop until fairly recently (i.e. the past 5 or 6 years at most), we can't really call this an "oldies" block. But, these music videos are a collection of some of the first, and best videos, we first saw. They will contain bands and singers of groups that originally got us hooked on JPop.

1. Every Little Thing – Feel My Heart
2. SPEED – Go! Go! Heaven
3. MAX – Tora Tora Tora
4. Ayumi Hamasaki – Whatever
